This Game Royally Rocks!

This summer, live like a prince (or princess) with the new game
The Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian!

WALT DISNEY PICTURES AND WALDEN MEDIA PRESENT

THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA PRINCE CASPIAN

The Story, Your Highness

Peter, Susan, Edmund, and Lucy, the young heroes of C.S. Lewis's The Chronicles of Narnia: The Lion the Witch and the Wardrobe, are back in Narnia!

Since their last visit to this faraway wondrous realm, one year has passed for them—that's more than 1,300 years in Narnian time. The Golden Age is over. The vicious Telmarines have conquered Narnia, now under the control of the evil King Miraz.

In The Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian game, YOU play as not only the four Pevensie children, but also a special group of Narnians—and it's up to you to use all of their combined skills to fight against Miraz's countless hordes. Your mission: to restore good Prince Caspian to the throne.

Game Features, Your Lordship

Narnia is a big, mysterious place—to survive and succeed, you'll need different abilities at different times. That's why you have 20 playable characters in the Prince Caspian game—everyone from Old Narnians to the Pevensies to Prince Caspian himself!

Bigger, movie-style battle scenes

20 playable characters

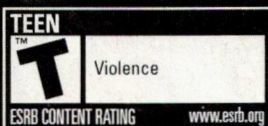

The Tips, Your Majesty

Explore: Narnia has changed a lot since the White Witch fell from power; don't expect anything to be easy to find now. You'll have to explore longer, farther, harder.

Team Up: Unlike before, Giants are your friends—but they are still rather dim-witted. Climb on their backs and use them to do some damage to the Telmarines.

Switch Around: Don't stick with just one character; all 20 playable characters have special skills that will help you move ahead. Try them all—you'll need to!

Stay Healthy: Collect as many metallic shards as you can to upgrade your health—later in the game, you'll need that strength more than you know.

About the February issue

Dear Nick Mag,
Letters to the Editors is my favorite section of your magazine. Why did you leave it out of the February issue?

Ashley, age 12
Wyoming

Dear Ashley,

February was a short month, so we gave it a short issue, and we just couldn't squeeze the Letters page in. But we're back, baby!

About the March issue

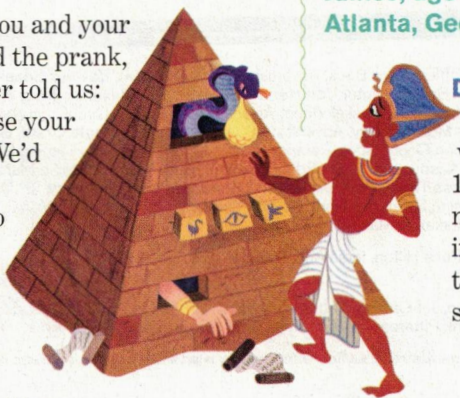

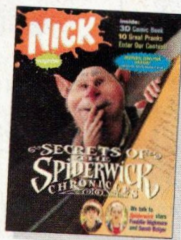

Dear Nick Mag,

I cannot thank you enough for the money pranks. I put the allowance prank in my parents' room, and they totally fell for it! When they figured out it was a prank, they cracked up. Keep making hilarious stuff!

Cary E.
via e-mail

Dear Cary,

We're glad you and your parents liked the prank, but you never told us: Did they raise your allowance? We'd like to think we're here to provide a service, not just make you laugh.

Dear Nick Mag,

I really enjoyed the March issue, especially the "Do You Know Dough?" quiz and the "Change for a Dollar" puzzle. Also, I enjoyed the prank coupon for $10. I tried it on my grandpa, and he fell for it!

via e-mail

Dear Nick Mag Reader,

We're glad the coupon worked for you. We hope it really paid off for your grandfather when he brought it to his bank.

Dear Nick Mag,

I liked—no, loved the Money Issue. My favorite part was finding out how money is made.

Stormi J., age 13
Waltham, Massachusetts

Dear Stormi,

The worst part of that story for us was that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing didn't give us any samples to take home.

Dear Nick Mag,

I loved "The First ATM." Is it real?

James, age 10
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear James,

No. ATMs weren't widespread until the 1970s...and that's AD, not BC. (Remember, if a story doesn't have the Nick Mag Real seal on it, it's not real!)

Dear Nick Mag,

I loved the "Dollars and Nonsense" story. I was surprised about the Del Monte sticker on the $20 bill and that it was sold for $25,300!

Lana
via e-mail

That's a lot of money for the Monte.

Dear Lana,

We agree, that bill was bananas!

Dear Nick Mag,

I love the 3D glasses and the 3D Comic Book! How do you make 3D drawings?

Robbie P., age 8
via e-mail

Dear Robbie,

Most of a 3D comic is made up of red lines and blue lines—each showing the same image but in slightly different positions. The red lens on the glasses allows one eye to see only the blue lines. The blue lens allows the other eye to see only the red lines. Your brain combines the two, and the result is the illusion of three dimensions. At least, this is how our 3D comics expert, Ray Zone, explained it to us. P.S.: Don't worry, we have trouble understanding it, too!

We crossed borders with these stars.

Vince Vaughn, actor

What language would you love to learn?

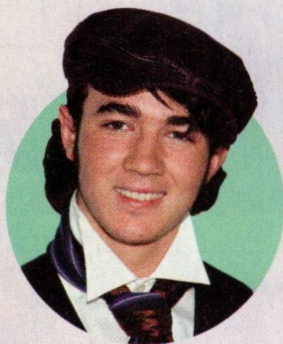

I would love to know Spanish. I speak it very little, but I'm around it quite a bit.

Angus T. Jones, actor

What country would you love to live in?

Japan. I like anime, and I think it would be a cool place to go.

Kevin Jonas, singer

What language would you love to learn?

Italian. I think it would be an amazing language to speak. It's so romantic.

How do I say "Feed me" in Italian?

Natasha Bedingfield, singer

If you could travel to a place you haven't been before, where would you go?

I'd love to go to the South Pole or Switzerland. I always like trying new adventures.

Emma Roberts, actress

If you could travel to a place you haven't been before, where would you go?

I'd love to go to Paris, France, and go shopping, go to the Eiffel Tower, and take pictures.

REALLY BAD Souvenirs

Here are some souvenirs we hope nobody ever brings you from their overseas travels.

Rubber Cobra From India

No, it's not a real snake, but it sure looks, acts, and bites like one! The cobra rises when it hears music and lunges for human flesh. Warning: Fangs may leave slight marks on skin. Batteries, flute, and poison antidote not included.

Namib Desert Paperweight

Lush sunsets, golden dunes, cooling desert breezes... is anything more exotic than the Namib desert in Namibia, Africa? How about your desk? Fifty pounds of real sand from the Namib will keep your paperwork in place until the sands of time run out—or someone leaves the fan on all day.

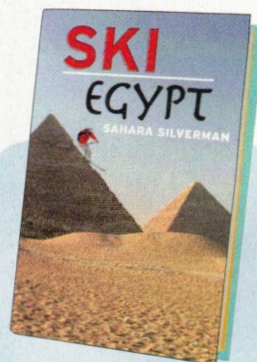

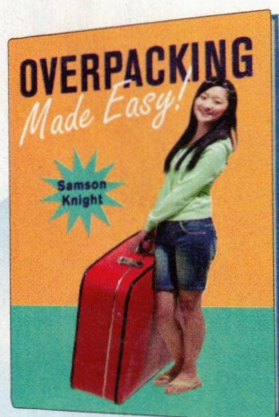

Galápagos Tortoise Key Chain

If you're over the usual souvenir key chains, why not get a cute, living, crawly creature for your keys instead! Don't let the fact that these key chains are over 100 years old scare you. At 300 pounds or more, you'll never lose your keys again! Just remember to walk slowly, and don't leave your key chain in the car on a hot day.

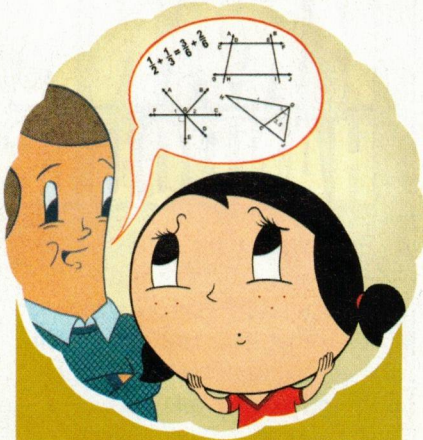

Least-Popular Travel Books by Jacob Lambert

Everyone needs a guide-book to help them get around in a foreign country—but these books won't help anybody.

Visitor in Your OWN COUNTRY

If any of the following is true, you may actually be a foreign exchange student.

At least half of what your teacher says doesn't make any sense.

Your parents keep telling you to watch your language.

It's very hard for you to get up in the morning; it's as if you're used to living in a different time zone.

Teachers keep asking you for your "papers."

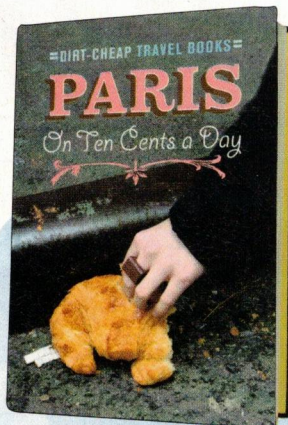

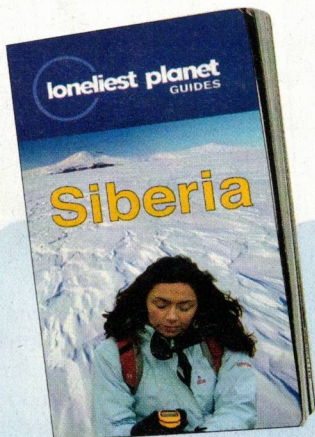

Your parents try to get you to eat unfamiliar foods that taste gross.

No one understands you.

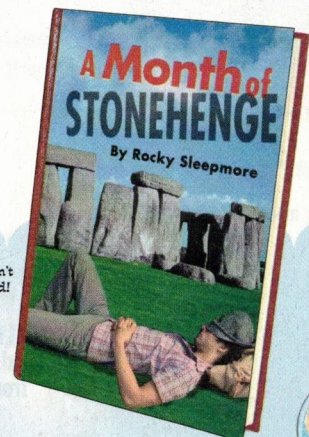

FAKE Frequent Flier

Convince friends and family that you are a frequent world traveler by saying any of the following.

- "Wait, which country is this?"
- "Do you think I can buy this sandwich with euros?"
- "I feel like eating something really exotic, like a hamburger and fries."
- "Tell me the next time you'll be in Spain, and we'll get together."
- "They have an express lane set up for me at airport security."
- "My English is a little rusty because I have to speak so many other languages all of the time."
- "I'm on my third passport this year."
- "How long is the layover between math class and social studies?"

That doesn't look so bad!

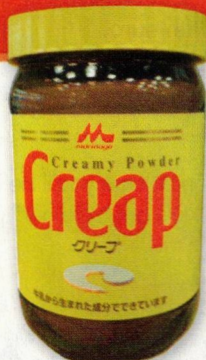

Bad Goods

PRANK HANDOUTS

Fool your parents with these prank school handouts. Your assignment: Try to keep a straight face as you pull the page out of your backpack and ask for help.

Side 1: Get a parent to read this take-home social studies worksheet on WeCanada! and then assist you with answering the questions.

Side 2: Show this take-home test to a parent and tell him or her that you really don't understand the questions, but that if you don't do well, you'll have to attend summer school classes.

SECTION 8: YOUR CHANGING WORLD: WeCANADA!

Canada is bracing itself for some very big changes in 2009. The Canadian government has decided to shake off the country's outdated image as a land of moose, maple trees, and lumberjacks and show the world just what modern Canada is all about.

THE NEW WeCANADA!

On January 1, 2009, Canada's name will officially change to WeCanada! to reflect the positive attitude of the Canadian people. Capital city Ottawa is updating its name to Awesomeottawa to reflect how awesome it really is. Also, Canadian singer Avril Lavigne will take over as the country's cultural ambassador and promises to rock out all over the world in the name of WeCanada!

Plans are also under way to redraw the country's borders and reshape its coastline so that WeCanada! looks like a beaver on maps and from space. The above map shows the old Canada as well as the new WeCanada!, which should be completed in 2010. Government officials chose the beaver because it's the rodent with the can-do attitude—and that's how WeCanada! wants to be seen by the world.

Please answer the following questions about the new WeCanada!

1. How will WeCanada!'s new look from space affect the annual migration of Canada geese?

2. If George Washington were alive today, what would he have to say about WeCanada!?

3. Should the Canada Dry brand of ginger ale change its name?

4. Use the space below to design the new WeCanada! flag:

Paris, France, is known for its museums and artists.

The Taj Mahal is a famous 17th-century tomb built in India.

Every DOG Must Have Its DAY

1 In her usual pleasant mood, Nick Mag editor-in-chief Frosty Butz sicced me on my latest assignment.

2 First stop: London, England, where I saw that my fellow canines had sunk their teeth into Big Ben to make their point. I asked a local police officer about it.

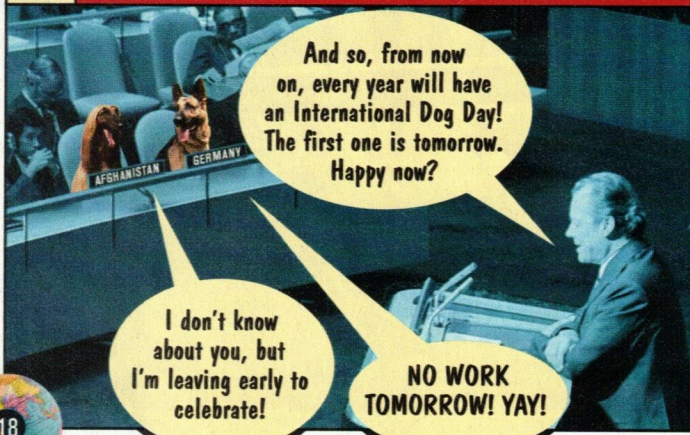

3 Next stop: Egypt. The defiant dogs had turned the Great Sphinx into one of their own.

4 Dogs throughout the world went on strike, leaving no one to protect homes, provide comfort, fetch things, and eat leftovers. I was so moved that, reader, I joined them!

5 The United Nations held a special emergency session and finally threw us the bone we wanted. The canine crisis was quickly quelled.

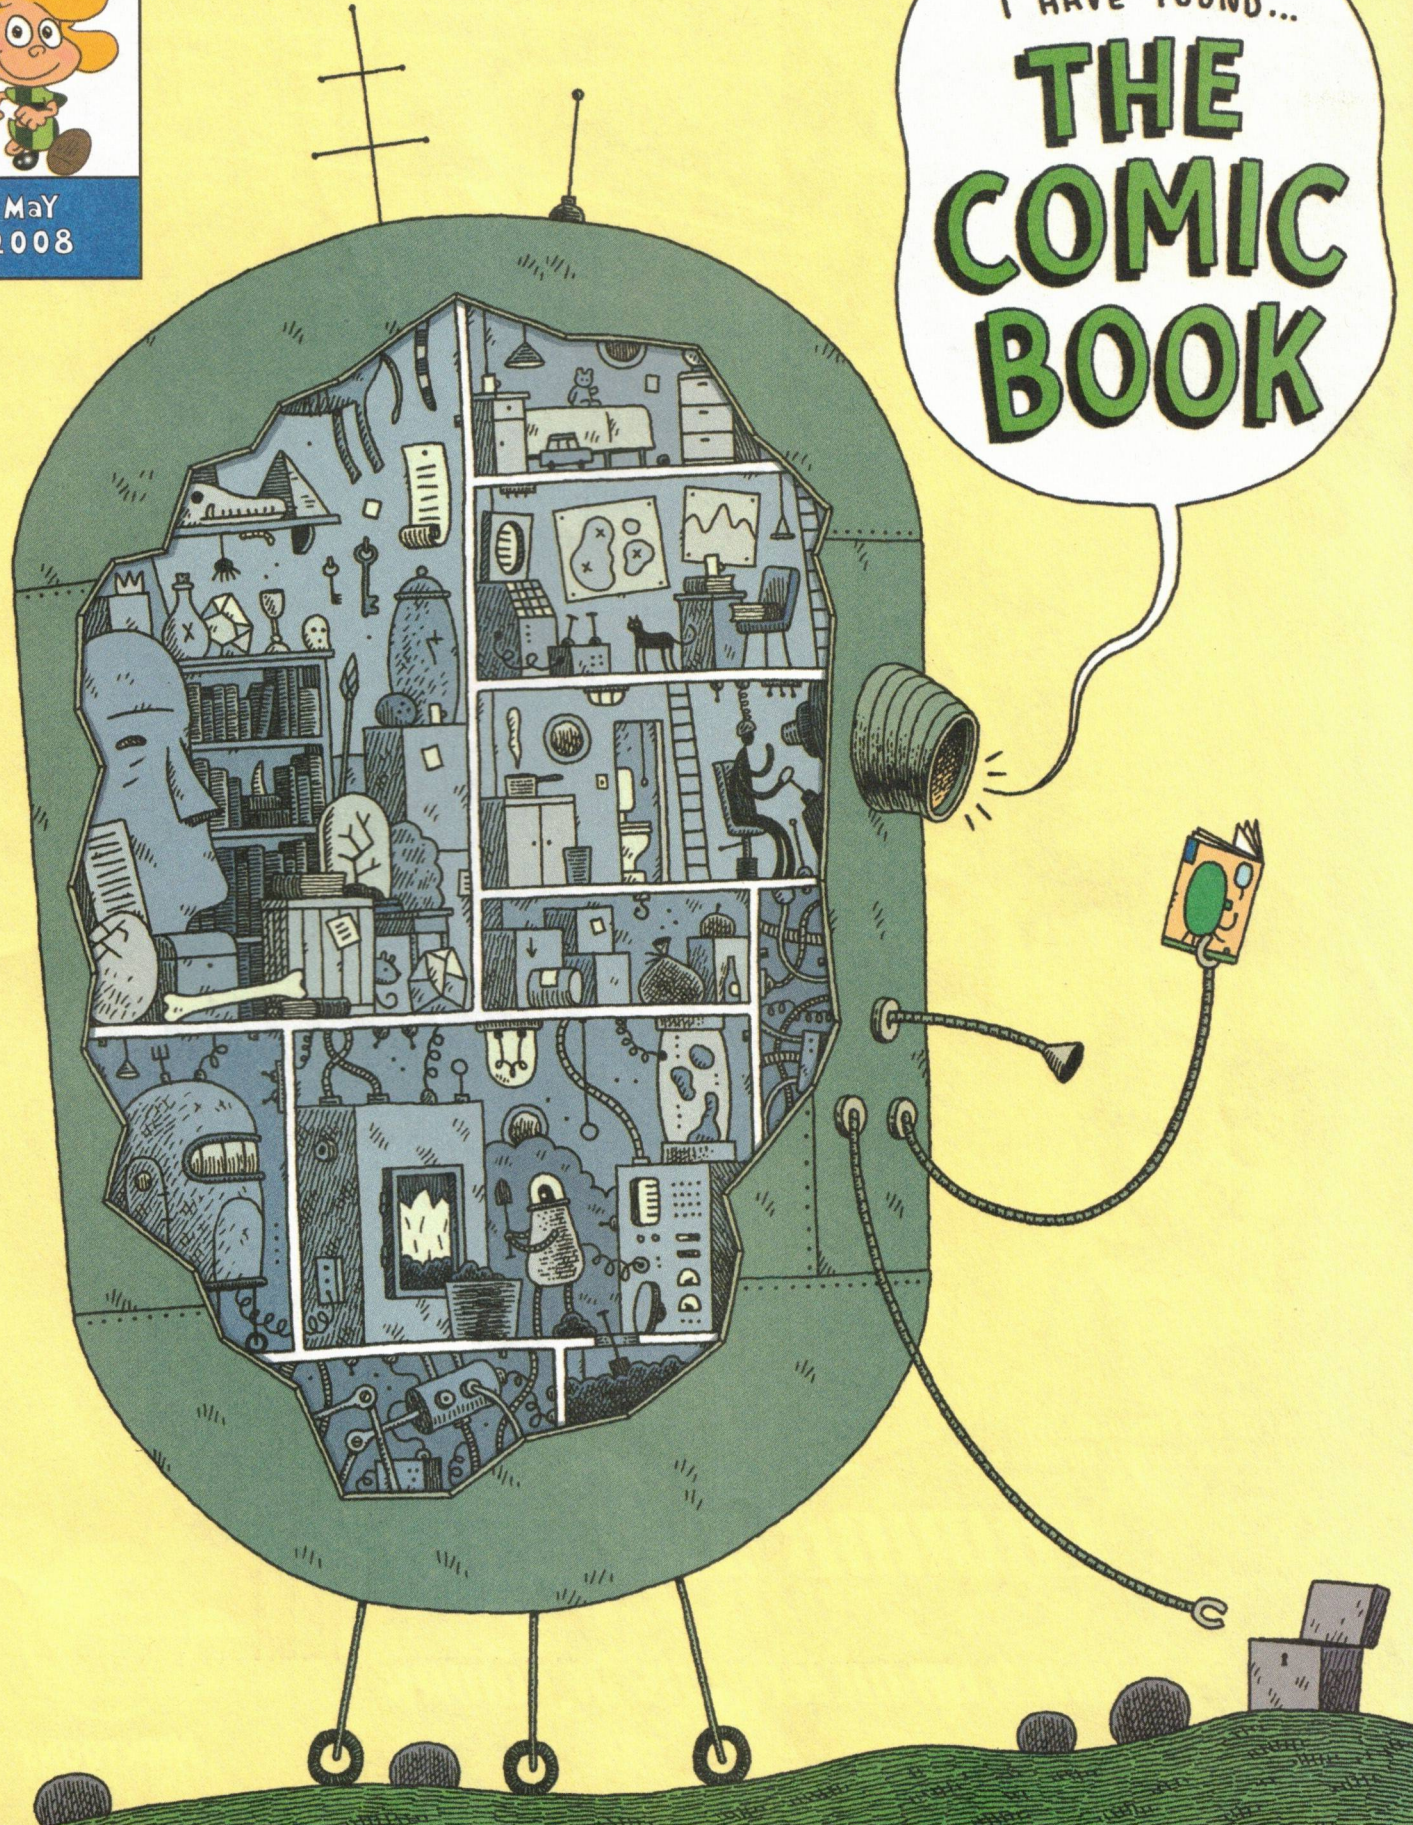

6 On International Dog Day, dogs did what they normally do...only they did more of it.

THE AMAZING HOST

Real

On The Amazing Race, teams travel around the world in a scavenger hunt contest, and each season's winning team receives a million dollars. Phil Keoghan (left) has been the show's globe-hopping host for 12 seasons. He shared some of his favorite moments with us.

by Anne D. Bernstein

PHIL'S FAVE

Phil Keoghan says the most beautiful place he has traveled to is New Zealand—where he was born. “There are mountains like the Swiss Alps, volcanic plateaus, subtropical areas, forests, and coastlines. It’s such wonderful variety!”

SPONTANEOUS SLEEPOVER

In Ukraine, Phil got stopped by immigration officials and was kept overnight. “There was something wrong with my visa. I had to sleep on a bench.”

BIGGEST GROSS-OUT

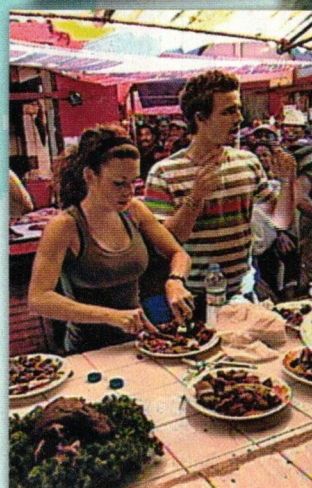

“In Madagascar, teams ate cow lips (near right). That was the most disturbing, disgusting thing I have ever seen in my life. But if I had a chance to win a million dollars, I would be majorly motivated!”

GREAT GRANDPA

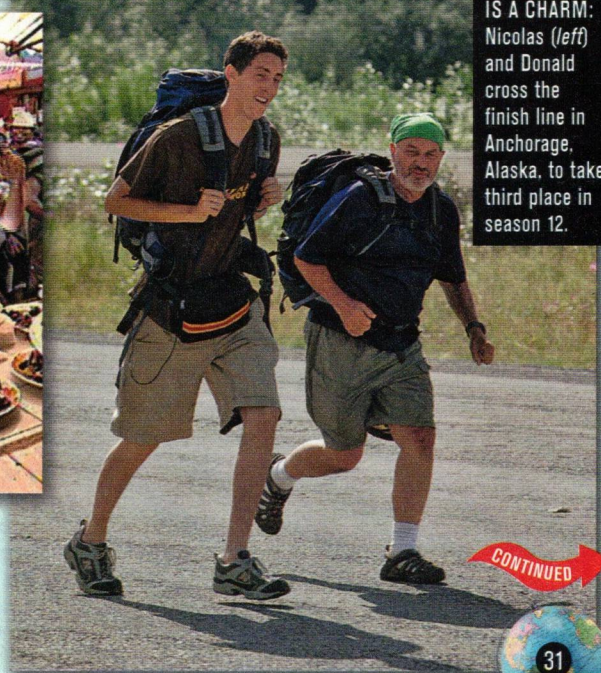

Phil found it inspiring when 68-year-old Donald (far right)—the oldest individual to complete the race so far—crossed the finish line with Nicolas, his grandson, for third place. “I hope that when I’m sixty-eight, I have that much gumption and energy and sheer determination.”

DONKEYING AROUND: Kynt (left) and Vyxsin, a team that stood out in Phil's memory, work on a task in Ireland. “They were so outrageous and colorful,” Phil said. They came in fifth in season 12.

THEIR LIPS ARE SEALED: Season 10 included a cow-lip-eating challenge. Above, Kimberly and James face off.

THIRD PLACE IS A CHARM: Nicolas (left) and Donald cross the finish line in Anchorage, Alaska, to take third place in season 12.

PHIL SPILLS

Phil let us in on some of his worldly secrets.

Packing pointer: "I pack everything that I need in one suitcase. My golden rule is that no matter how long you're going for, never pack for more than a week."

Phil never leaves home without: Earplugs, an eye mask, an iPod, and a travel diary.

Weirdest place he's "gone": "I once peed off a four-thousand-foot cliff in the Andes [mountains in South America]. I watched it go down. I finished before it got to the bottom."

Most useful phrases to know in any language:

"Please and thank you, because the most important thing is being polite. Some teams are rude and they'll get stopped in their tracks, and other teams are very polite and people will help them."

Number of passport stamps: "Hundreds. All the pages are full."

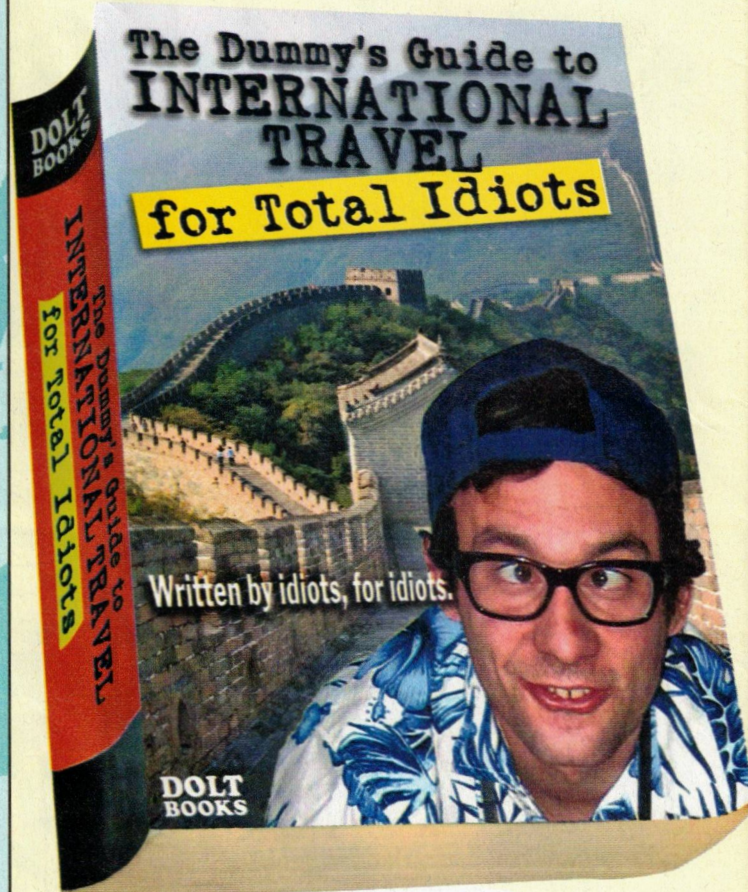

Dream teammate: "My dad." □

DOUBLE TROUBLE: Cousins Charla (far left) and Mirna have appeared on two seasons of The Amazing Race: season 5 and season 11 (All-Stars). "It's not about people who are the fastest at going from point A to point B, but people who are the most interesting going from point A to point B," Phil says.

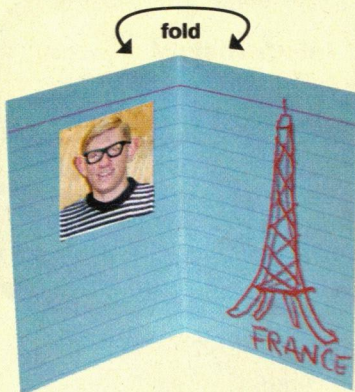

PRANK BOOK

Traveling in a foreign country can be challenging—especially if you're an idiot. Luckily, the editors of The Dummy's Guide to International Travel for Total Idiots have spelled out everything travelers need to know, plus a lot that they don't. We printed two pages from the latest edition. Enjoy the moronic ride!

Passports

A passport is required for international travel. However, if you find yourself without one, try any of these strategies:

1. Take along somebody else's passport and hope the airport official isn't paying attention.
2. Purchase a large suitcase and hide in it.
3. Fold a blue index card in half, affix a small picture of yourself to the inside, and write "U.S. Passport" on the outside. With a crayon, draw a picture of the Eiffel Tower on the inside and write the word France under it so that the "passport" looks like it has been used.

Idiot's Insight: If you are entering a country without a passport, try turning around and walking backward. Tell the customs official that you are not entering but leaving.

Packing

Many people overpack when traveling abroad. Here's how to avoid this: Pack only half of what you were planning to take...and then take out half! So if you are going to be away for six days, pack a suitcase with enough clothing for three days. Then remove half of that. You can even remove half of that! You'll thank us for your superlight bag!

Pack sensibly.

Is the Water Safe?

Maybe, maybe not. But why take chances? European water, for example, may contain microbes that are too sophisticated for Americans to handle. To be safe, pack a plastic bottle of American water with you. Then, when you run out of water, fill your American-made bottle with the local water. It will fool your bladder and your immune system!

Normal microbes

Sophisticated European microbes

Food

One of the most exciting things about international travel is the chance to taste foods you've never had before.

But to be safe, avoid:

- anything that leaves a trail of slime as it crawls across your plate.
- dishes with names that roughly translate as "Eat now, hurl very soon."
- a restaurant that advertises that it's conveniently located next to the hospital.

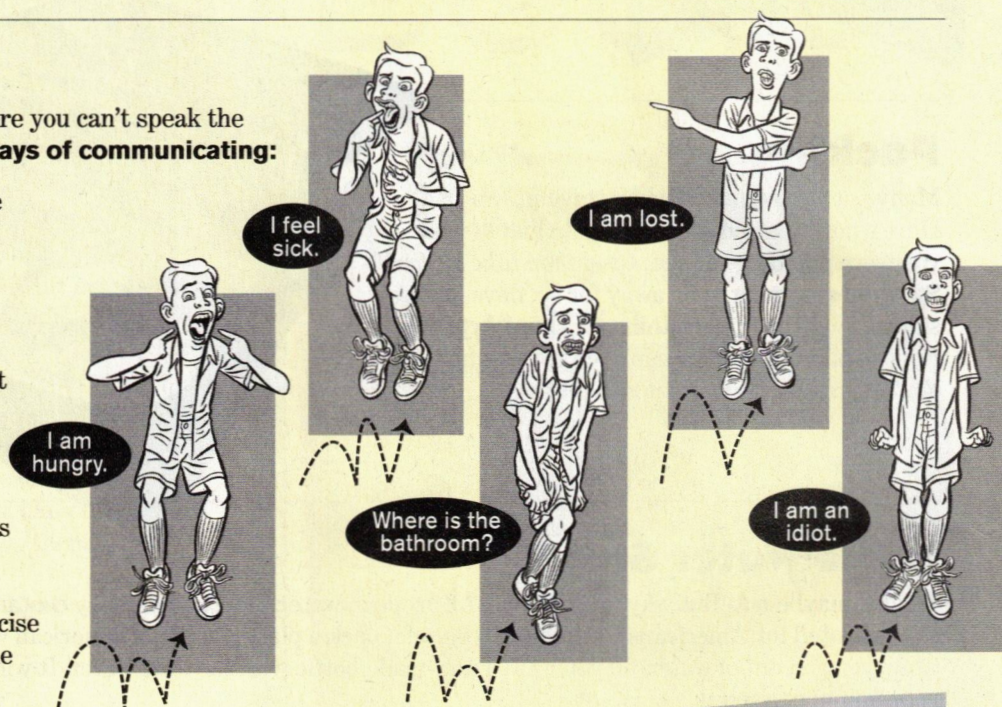

Idiot's Insight: If you get tired of the local food, try this: When ordering in a restaurant, repeat the word hamburger over and over again in a very loud voice. Eventually, you will either get one or be sent back home where you can get one.

Language

If you are visiting a country where you can't speak the language, try these alternate ways of communicating:

- Speak Pig Latin on the chance that others are fluent in it, too.
- Speak English with an accent that sounds a lot like the local language. People won't understand a word you say, but they'll appreciate that you are making an effort.
- Use Jumperese. It's an international language that lets people communicate without words. Since it's based on jumping, you'll get lots of exercise as you speak! At right are some useful phrases in Jumperese.

Idiot's Insight:

In some countries, people bargain to determine the price of an item. If you can stand it, carry a bag of rotting fish in your pocket. The seller will quickly agree to your price just to get rid of you!

Shopping

Of course you'll want souvenirs from your trip. If you're on a budget, consider inexpensive gifts like hotel soaps, shampoos, and toilet paper, or airplane barf bags (we recommend unused). While they make memorable gifts, avoid taking home large chunks of ancient ruins or rabid wild animals.

Forgot to buy a gift? Don't worry. After you get home, buy something that sounds like it's from the country you visited. For examples, see the chart at right.

COUNTRY	GIFT
France	French fries
China	China
Brazil	Brazil nuts
Switzerland	Swiss cheese
Belgium	Belgian waffles

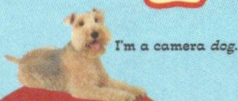

Thinking of you.

William Moseley as Peter Pevensie.

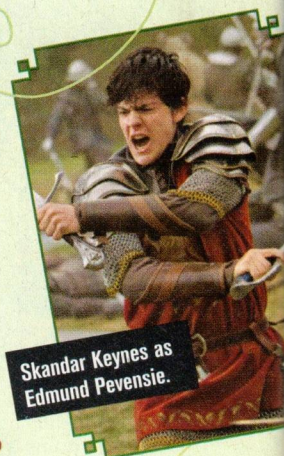

NARNIA

RETURNS:

A Prince of a Sequel

The Chronicles of Narnia: Prince Caspian charges into theaters this month.

This time, the Pevensie children are summoned back to Narnia to help Prince Caspian claim the throne from his evil uncle. We talked with the actors who play Prince Caspian and Trumpkin.

Skandar Keynes as Edmund Pevensie.

BEN BARNES plays Prince Caspian, the rightful heir to Narnia's throne.

NICKELODEON MAGAZINE: Were you a fan of the Narnia books when you were younger?

BEN BARNES: Absolutely. I found my old copy of Prince Caspian when I got the role, and it had my name written inside in my eight-year-old handwriting.

What was it like joining the cast?

They were very closely knit. I remember watching some interviews when the first movie came out and Andrew [Adamson, the director,] was saying that it was like they were a family. I was just thinking, Come on, tell the truth—you hated each other. But then I got to the set and they really were the absolute best of friends. And they were completely welcoming and encouraging.

What was your favorite scene from the movie?

Probably the ones that I did with Sergio Castellitto, who plays my uncle. He was able to switch on this wildness in his eyes. He was terrifying. Some of the action sequences were really fun to do as well. Galloping through trees and wielding a sword is every little boy's dream.

How much training did you do?

The first couple of weeks I was on a horse five or six hours a day, which left me walking a little bit funny at the end of the day. I also really enjoyed the sword training.

Did you have to wear much makeup for the role?

I got a hefty fake tan every day and I had hair extensions. They took forever to glue on. For the first week after you get them, you can't sleep because there are big gobs of glue on your head.

What was it like wearing armor?

For the final battle sequence, I wore full armor. It got very hot and it was kind of uncomfortable if you were riding a horse. But there's no complaining on a Narnia set because no matter how uncomfortable or hot you are, you look around and there's always somebody wearing a minotaur suit with an animatronic head, and they take it off and you can see steam coming out. You think, Okay, I'm fine. Actually, I'm good!

ARROWLESS ARCHER: Susan Pevensie (Anna Popplewell) shows Prince Caspian (Ben Barnes) her skills.

PETER DINKLAGE plays Trumpkin, a dwarf who leads the Pevensie children to Prince Caspian.

NICKELODEON MAGAZINE:
What is your character like?

PETER DINKLAGE: Trumpkin is not a villain or a hero, but he has his heroic moments. He has been put into a situation he didn't ask to be in. Trumpkin would rather be home—I was going to say watching TV, but I don't think they have TV in Narnia. But his dislike of the bad guys is pretty severe, and that makes him want to help the kids and the Narnians.

What was challenging about making the movie?

We shot it over the summer [in Eastern Europe]. We had armor on and about three hours' worth of makeup every day, so it was really hot. I had a fake nose and sometimes the extreme heat would melt my face off a little bit, so in the middle of the day, I'd come back to the set with a new nose.

Could you eat with your makeup on?

Yeah, but I would take part of my beard off because sometimes my sandwich would get trapped in it. The beard is made of yak hair, so somewhere there's a yak on a mountaintop with a little less hair.

Is it weird to see yourself with all of that makeup on?

It was the first time [as an actor] where I didn't have a hard time looking at myself. I'm sort of hidden in the makeup and—it sounds insane—but I was really interested in staring at myself and looking at this person who wasn't me.

What was your favorite scene to shoot?

There's a scene that we shot early on in New Zealand [above]. We're in a boat at this place called Glass Water Canyon. And even the crew members and the director, who are all from New Zealand, had never seen a place this beautiful. The water comes down from glaciers, so it's basically the way water is supposed to look. It was fifty feet deep and you could see the bottom.

Did you have a favorite food on the set?

Toasties, which are basically grilled cheese sandwiches.

What is your favorite line from the movie?

"Narnia's a more savage place than you remember."

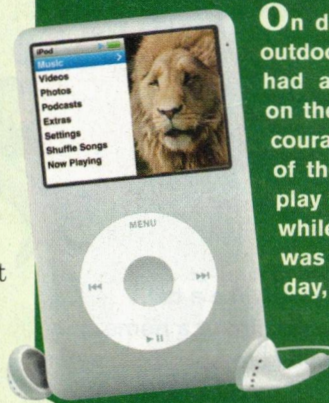

How would you spend an afternoon with your character?

I'd bring him to the airport and have him watch planes take off because he'd think that's pretty cool. ☐

Peter Dinklage without Trumpkin makeup.

THE LION, THE WITCH, AND THE DJ

On days when scenes were filmed outdoors, director Andrew Adamson had a soundman set up speakers on the set. Cast members were encouraged to take turns being the DJ of the day and bring their iPod to play music between setups. After a while, it became easy to guess who was in charge of the music each day, especially when it was the turn of Skandar Keynes (who plays Edmund Pevensie)—he's a big Bob Dylan fan.

Meet The Mighty B!

The Mighty B!
airs on Saturday mornings.

The Mighty B! is a new Nicktoon about 10-year-old Bessie Higgenbottom and her quest to become the ultimate member of Honeybee Troop 828. Here's a guide to the show's characters.

Bessie

Bessie Higgenbottom is a proud Honeybee. She believes that if she can earn every possible Honeybee badge in the universe, she'll turn into the superhero known as the Mighty B. As a dedicated member of Troop 828, Bessie wears her uniform daily and tries to help anyone she can (whether they like it or not).

Happy

Happy has a torn ear that he can wag like a tail. When Bessie first meets him, he is without a home or a name. At first, Happy is unwilling to become a pet and lose his freedom as a stray, but he soon finds that he likes being Bessie's dog (and eating all the treats she gives him).

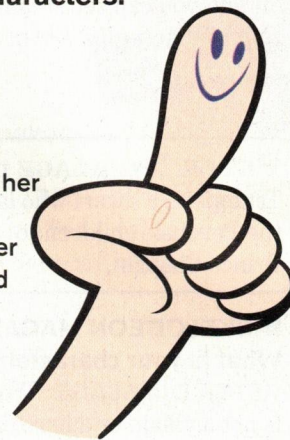

Ben

Ben is Bessie's little brother and biggest fan. He is always eager to tag along on her adventures. He desperately wants to be her sidekick when she becomes the Mighty B.

Finger

Every morning, Bessie draws a smiley face on her left index finger. As her closest friend, Finger gives Bessie advice and encourages her when she's down.

Portia

Bessie's fellow troop member Portia is often the obstacle between Bessie and her next badge. In addition to being the troop leader's daughter, Portia is a spoiled snob who usually gets everything that she wants, even if she has to go around the rules.

Rocky

One of the cool older kids in Bessie's town, Rocky sometimes works at the café that Bessie's mother runs. He loves to try tricks on his skateboard, and he also plays electric guitar in a garage band.

- "I play better after I warm up. It takes me about one game."
- "If you have to eat something before a match, try hot dogs. They taste good."

Good advice!

Wesley

- "Practice, practice, practice... Repetition is the biggest thing. You have to memorize each turn and get the game play down to where it's second nature and you're just reacting."
- "At a competition, being able to relax [is crucial]. You have to pretend you're at your house, just playing on your couch. It even helps in life. I used to get stressed out about tests. Now I'm able to relax and take things as they are."
